EXTRA SESSION OF THE SENATE. Van Wick's Speech on the "Backbone" Land Grant Issue.

WASHINGTON, March 9 .- After the reading of the journal the Chair laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, being a notice that he (Bayard) had forwarded to the Legislature of Delaware the resignation of his position as Senator, also communications from the Secretary of the Interior and Attorney General, notifying the Senate of their acceptance of Cabinet positions, and requesting the President of the Senate to so notify the Legislature of their respective States.

The credentials of Mr. Blair, as Senator to fill a temporary vacancy, were laid before the Senate and read.

Mr. West moved they be referred to the Committee on Priveleges and Elections.

Mr. Hoar offered a formal resolution that the oath be administered to the Senator from New Hampshire, and Mr. Harris asked unanimous consent that it lay over till tomorrow. Granted.

The resolution offered on Friday by Mr. Van Wyck, making inquiry of the Secretary of the Interior in regard to the insuance of patents to the "Backbone" road, was laid before the Senate, and Mr. Van Wyck spoke at

He said it was matter of sincere regret that the last act of the administration should have been performed at the dictation and in the interest of corporate wealth. He detailed the history of the "Backbone" road and its mysterious record, which, he said, formed the most remarkable chapter in railrord annals. Gould and Huntington, he declared, were scheming in this matter as they were with the Scott and Texas Pacific, using the same tactics and the same influences. They would not consent that Congress should forfeit this grant unless it should at the same time convey it to them. The proposition was so infamous that Congress, though manipulated as Huntington dictated, would not consent.

It was claimed that there was a special land bave any advocate there, and were their rights protected? The law secured settlers' rights, but did the Cabinet protect them, or were they turned over to the tender mercies of this corporation? It was claimed by way of apology or defence that Secretary Kirkwood desired the opinion of the Attorney General as to the validity of this grant With a few notable exceptions the history of the Land Bureau of the Interior Department was a record of the demands of land grant corporations and decrees of the department in obedience thereto.

But when the demand was too exacting. an opinion of the Attorney General was sought, behind which to escape until the storm of public indignation had passed by. In this case the Attorney General was equal to the occasion, and sustained the reputation of the office in that direction. Very learned arguments by Judges Dillon, Green and Pierrepont on behalf of Gould and Huntington were made before the Attorney General, but, alas, no one appeared on babalf of the people. From all the offices of this great Nation no one appeared to defend the public domain. No wonder the Attorney General readily accepted the arguments of Gould'stattorneys. In the Forty-eighth Congress the Public Lands Committee of the House reported in favor of forfeiture, but by some political legerdemain the matter was afterward referred to the Judiciary Committee to report as to the legality of for-

A majority of the latter reported adversely and was sustained in the House by a close vote. That the symmetry of the legislation might be preserved, it was to be hoped that the same Huntington might hereafter give this company or its assigns coerce this Government into an extra session of its Cabinet and secure action with which they would seek to foreclose Congress and the people from effectively depriving the spoiler of his

This Republic was net to perish on the 4th of March. Its continuity was not to be disturbed by changing the executive. There was to be no suspension of powers and duties. All other business in the Interior Department was people should ask, why this haste? Was it in a few days. dangerous to trust the representatives of the people in the next Congress? Was it dangerous to trust the incoming administration to do justice to the men claiming this grant? Was there danger that the rights of settlers on these lands would be recognized and the public domain be protected by the incoming administration? If so, then it evidently had been installed too soon. He desired to give public notice that the legality of the patents would be contested, so that the purchasers of the protection accorded innocent purchasers without notice.

Mr. Teller, in replying to Mr. Van Wyck, said: "Mr. President, my experience in this body has not been as lengthy as that of some that sit before me, but after something over eight years that I have been in the public service, I confess to considerable astonishment on picking up the resolution so a discourteous, so unsenstorial as this to a co-ordinate branch of the Government. I suppose it has accomplished the purpose for which it was introduced. It has enabled the mover of this resolution to appear before the public, not for the first time, no one first occasion, but as he has on various occasions as the special champion of the laboring classes of a down trodden people of this country, and as the special opponent of cor-porations. I presume the Senator in introducing the resolution expected nothing more. He hardly expected that any department of the Government would allow itself to be thus assailed without answering the resolution. Before this discussion is closed, and on some other occasion, I shall call the attention of this Sanate to the remarkable character of various resolutions coming from this same source, that have been directed to the Executive department of this Government within the last three years. I want to give notice here and to everybody that, although the administration has passed into the hands of a political party with which I am affiliated, yet as a Senator having due respect for the Executive department of the Government, I never intend, without at least a protest, that that admin-Istration shall be treated by this Senator or company-there has been done something ! throat and lung affections, that never has been done before. Every Secretary that sat in the chair of the Department of the Interior for the last eight by the Secretary who has just retired. During a good portion co that time the honorable Senator has beerka member, either of the House or this body. He has been member of the Committee on Public Lands, and never, either on that committee or in this body, has he been heard to say a word on this subject. It is in the press, it is where the Senator can get credit for being the champion of the slown trodden and oppressed and opponent of corporations that he is heard. When legislation can be had and the interests of the Government can be probeen silent as the grave. There are on the records of the Land Office milthe same situation is that under which this land was issued."

Mr. Teller gave column of argument as to the law of the case; but showed no reason why it devolved thom him (Teller) to rush the matter through and cover himself as it were with glory.

Mr. Van Wyck rejoined the question was not of glory but facts, and the facts were as he s'ated. Adjourned.

OKLAHOMA BOOMERS.

They Claim the Cattlemen Have Misrepresented Matters Regarding Those Lands.

Washington, March 9 -The first question of importance to be settled by President Cleveland's administration is the statutes of the Oklahoma lande. For the first time the "boomers" are represented here by counsel, who claim that the United States holds the title to the territory, and that it should be open to settlement. They have with them a large amount of Svidence as to the occupancy of all Oklahoma by the cattlemen, and are prepared to prove that the facts of the case have been persistently misstated in Congrees, either knowingly or with the view of misleading the public mind. The leases of the Indian reserves surrounding the Oklahoma lands are in violation of the provis-ions of the Revised. Statutes, but the late Secretary of the Interior permitted them to meeting of the Cabinet-its last, to legalize | exist, and under his extraordinary rulings | of the Republic of Gautemela was received this fraud. Did the actual settlers on this more than 20,000,000 acres of the Indian Territory have been captured by speculating

Now that the war between the legitimate settlers and the cautle speculators is to be opened before the new administration, there will be lively time, and much of the inside history of affairs in Oklahoma will be given to the public. Captain Couch's sworn statement giving the names of the cattle companies and syndicate, the Standard Oil Company among other? is producing a profund sensation here, and is likely to attract the attention of the whole country.

Civilians and West Pointers. Special to the Sentinel.

Washington, March 9 .- Army officers of the lower ranks complain of the way in which civilians have crept into the service as their rivals during the past three years. They say that nearly all of the second lisutenants have been filled from private life, and that a number of promotions from the lower ranks have been made of these men from civil life over the heads of West Point

The second lieutenants have been filled up full by the retiring President, several appointments to that rank from civil life having been made during the last week of the administration, so that there is now no place to put the graduates this spring from the Military Academy.

Habitual constipation is not only one of the most unpleasant, but at the same time one of the most injurious conditions of the human system, and is but a forerunner of disease, unless removed. This is usually accomplished by the use of purgatives, which for the time afford relief, but after their immediate effects have passed they leave the system in a worse state than before. A new broom is to be applied in the departments, and some of the men who have been possessing their minds with the belief that their offices were created for them and they were created that the offices might be made for them will walk

Quite a large proportion of the old employes in the departments have come to believe that they are indispensable and that no one would be so audacious or indiscreet as to attempt to continue the effice without them. Unmistakably these men will go. Otherwise they would be made to feel the force of An-

A TALK WITH TILDEN.

The Sage Rejoices at the Return of the Democratic Party to Their Heritags. NEW YORK, March 5 .- "You have come to the setting sun, when you should have gone with the rising orb," was the remark made by Samuel J. Tilden to a prominent Democratic politician of the West, who, by reason of belated trains, was unable to reach Washington, and so went to Yonkers yesterday to pay his respects to the sage of Greystone. "Well," continued Mr. Tilden, who was in high spirits, "you have come to me at a time when I am gratified beyond measure. See, I have just received a dispatch from Washington that the inauguration is complete. This land of our forefathers that the Lord gave us for a Democratic heritage has been restored to the people, as I have never doubted it would ba. With his comparative youth, absence from distraction by family cares, love I ever knew of, and worthy of the greatest confiof hard work and determination to succeed, there is a bright prospect of a successful and pure administration.
